East of England ODN study days are offered to delegates for a vastly reduced cost. In order to be able to do this we invite industry sponsors to support the events. Sponsors do for some events include milk companies. The East of England ODN along with the NNA feel that education opportunities are vital for continuous professional development. Conferences and study days provide an up to date evidence base for enhancement of neonatal nurse's practice and knowledge. As stated in the NNA position statement on involvement with milk companies (which can be found on the NNA website <http://www.nna.org.uk>), education is important in relation to all forms of nutrition including breast milk as the preferred choice where possible but also specialist, prescribed nutrition for those babies who may require it. In addition, debate and discussion are common at conferences and these can facilitate reflective accounts which are essential for NMC revalidation. Finally, it is up to the individual to decide if they wish to attend any conference and respect your own views on this.
